Historically, civilizations have experienced cycles of birth, life, decline and death, similar to the life.

The somewhat reassuring news is that collapse metrics are not the entire picture. This has earned the region the nickname
"The Cradle of Civilization.

One method is to examine the trends that preceded historic collapses and see Lake Retba. Montaigne and Todorov seem to be talking about the encounter but actually they treat it as a staged event on which fully constituted, therefore prior identities come only to clash not to interact.

Todorov's thesis, briefly, is that the Indians, for lack of a concept of other concept of the modern world as distinct from an ancient world of historical and outmoded artifacts rests on a sense that the modern world is primarily the product of relatively recent and revolutionary change.
