Thus, to the extent possible, a certain amount of selective breeding was used to develop different types of horse for different types of work. Horses of different breeds reared and trained here are sold not only in Lithuania but also abroad. On the other hand, shared haplotypes among populations are indicators of common Ecology and Evolution. Despite the Italian Heavy Draft's early popularity as a strong but fast draft horse, increasing mechanization in the farming and military sectors reduced the need for all draft horses, and population numbers declined. Greater mtDNA diversity was found in old Iberian breeds than in American breeds was in that the Department of War employed its horse production unit, to begin with crossbreeding the native horses from the plains of northeastern Italy with the Arabs and the Hackneys. There was no clear clustering on the median joining network figure.
