Due to time limitation and cost consideration, students do not travel often back and forth to and from their hometown or home country but they would eventually travel during school breaks; and since college study spans from two 2 years for the lower degrees to seven 7 years for the higher ones, they do not need a permanent residence to settle in the country they study in but rather a temporary living unit that provides them the necessary qualities to achieve their studies. That situation often leads to the point that students are not happy with the accommodation they have, and even in campus hostel Limkokwing: The University that Changed the Rules negative appreciation from the end users. As mentioned earlier, sick building syndrome affect productivity, concentration.
